Sgt. Tye Cobb Drinkard, U. S. A., arrived in Lynchburg Friday night from Korea, after being over there for about 15 months. He was one of the 3,468 service men who arrived in Seattle, Washington June 23, on the Navy Transport, Gen. M. C. Meigs from the Far East.

It was the same story of deep happiness, punctuated by warm tears of gratitude, that is told each time a gray-hulled troopship from the Far East cleaves the waters of Elliott Bay to berth at the Port of Embarkation.

In fact the arrival of the Meigs was more than one story—it was 3,468 stories; each dependent on the ship and based on the world condition which demands military defense of the nation but each an independent story of individual hopes, loves and ambitions.

POISON BAITS EFFECTIVE FLY KILLERS WHERE OTHER CHEMICALS MAY FAIL

Poisoned baits will control house flies in some situations where more familiar sprays fail.

This heartening news comes from Dr. J. O. Rowell, etomologist at VPI, who has been conducting demonstrations throughout Virginia using poison baits with what he calls "almost spectacular" results.

The baits have been particularly effective in unscreened dairies, poultry houses, and garbage dumps. Flies that have been resistant to insecticides such as DDT have been controlled with baits containing organic-phosphorus compounds.

Malathion is one of the insecticides that is very effective in baits. It is available commercially as a 50% emulsifiable concentrate and as a 25% wettable powder. It is much less toxic to the higher animals than are some of the phosphorus insecticides now used for controlling farm pests, and no more toxic than DDT and similar insecticides.

There are two types of baits — (1) liquids, which may be applied to the floors, walls, or other surfaces; and (2) dry baits, which may be sifted over floors or wherever flies gather. Either type is distributed thinly to reduce the hazard to domestic animals that is present when large amounts are exposed in a single container.

Blackstrap molasses, cane or corn sirup, and sugar may be used in liquid baits to attract the flies. Use the one most readily available and cheapest in your locality. Granulated sugar is used in dry baits.

Details on preparing and using the bait are included in a new circular, "Fly Control with Poisoned Bait." Ask your county agent or write the VPI Agricultural Extension Service, Blacksburg, for a free copy.

NON-BANK PUBLIC OWNS HALF OF FEDERAL DEBT

Growing concern over the steady rise in the public debt, which is now crowding the legal limit of $275 billions, has focused increasing attention on its distribution and on the extent that it is being financed out of the savings of individuals and other investors to help offset the inflationary effects of deficit financing.

Here is how the ownership of the Federal debt broke down at the end of 1953:

Individuals, institutions and other non-bank investors — $137.4 billions or 49.9 per cent of the total.

The banking system (commercial and Federal Reserve Banks) — $89.5 billions, or 32.5 per cent of the total.

U. S. Government investment accounts —$48.3 billions, or 17.6 per cent of the total.

These proportions have shown a high degree of stability for several years. The widest possible ownership of Federal securities by individuals and the non-bank public in general outside the commercial banking system has been a cornerstone of Federal debt management ever since the debt began to skyrocket in World War II.

The figures show that the public debt at the end of last December added up to just over $275 billions. The present legal top, but some $500 millions of the total were not subject to the limitation. The current public debt is some $270 billions. The post World War II low point was approximately $252 billions in 1948. Thus the public debt has increased some $20 in the last five years, indicating the extent the Federal establishment lived beyond its income in the period.

The non-bank public has owned about half the public debt for a number of years. Close to half the non-bank aggregate is owned by individuals, and U. S. Savings Bonds represent the dominant part of these holdings.

Round-Up of Farm Talent To Be Held Here

Members of the Southern States' Advisory Board and the Farm Home Advisory Committee voted at their Annual Meeting Planning Conference held recently to hold a Farm Talent Round-Up Amateur Contest as one of the highlights of their local Southern States Annual Membership meeting to be held August 27. The meeting will be held at the American Legion Hall, Appomattox.

This contest—for amateurs only from 12 to 100 years of age—will offer an opportunity to the winning act at the local meeting to appear on the Original Amateur Hour Television Show in New York. Amateurs desiring to enter the contest should contact Billy Wheeler, of Spout Spring, Va., or W. T. Coleman, of Appomattox, Va., manager of Coleman's Feed & Seed Store.

Wheeler is chairman of the local Farm Talent Round-Up Contest, and Coleman is vice-chairman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. J. A. Tweedy, Mrs. Abbitt Coleman and Wilson Scruggs, all of Appomattox, Va. All committee members have extra contest entry blanks.

The contest is open to amateurs who are members of the immediate families of all farm people and all Southern States patrons. Employees of Cooperative Service Agencies and Southern States Cooperative, and their immediate families are not eligible to participate in the contest.

The Farm Talent Round-Up Contest will be sponsored jointly by Coleman's Feed & Seed Store and Southern States Cooperative, with the Original Amateur Hour Television Show of Radio City New York cooperating. About 450 similar contests will be held throughout the six-state operating territory of Southern States Cooperative within the next few months.

The winning local act will be given an all-expense paid trip to a district elimination contest where it will compete with winning acts from other communities. It will also receive a $5.00 cash award and a blue ribbon at the local meeting. The second place winner at the local level will receive a $3.00 cash award and a red ribbon, while the third place act will be given a $1.00 cash prize and a white ribbon.

The two winners at each of nine district elimination contests will be given an all-expense paid trip to the Southern States Cooperative's Annual Membership meeting in Richmond, Va., November 11 and 12, to compete in the final contest. A cash award of $25.00 will be given to the third place act at the distict contest.

The winning act at Richmond, will be given an all-expence paid trip to New York where the act will appear on the Original Amateur Hour Television Show. The runner-up act will receive a $300 cash prize and a red ribbon, while a $100 cash award and a white ribbon will be given to the third place act.
